Peer-review process

This journal operates a single blind review process. All contributions as “paper” will be initially assessed by the editor for suitability for the journal. Papers deemed suitable are then typically sent to a minimum of two independent expert reviewers to assess the scientific quality of the paper. The Editorial board is responsible for the final decision regarding acceptance or rejection of articles, and the types of papers. The decision of the Editorial board is final.

Manuscripts for “General articles” are reviewed by the Editorial board, and acceptance or rejection of them is decided there. If the revised manuscript is not resubmitted within 3 months by the author, it is deemed to have been withdrawn.

Ethics in publishing

This journal commits to a deep obligation to meet the standards of ethics through the publication process. This journal follows closely the third-party organization’s principles, such as Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE, <https://publicationethics.org/about/our-organisation>), World Association of Medical Editors (WAME, <https://wame.org/recommendations-on-publication-ethics-policies-for-medical-journals>) which set the standards and provide best practices and guidance to reach the highest standard in publication ethics. In particular, some important points are also shown below.

- Authorship of the paper: Authorship should be limited to those who have made a significant contribution to the conception, design, execution, or interpretation of the reported study.
- Originality and plagiarism: The authors should ensure that they have written entirely original works, and if the authors have used the work and/or words of others, that this has been appropriately cited or quoted.
- Data access and retention: Authors may be asked to provide the raw data in connection with a paper for editorial review, and should be prepared to provide public access to such data.
- Multiple, redundant or concurrent publication: An author should not in general publish manuscripts describing essentially the same research in more than one journal or primary publication.
- Acknowledgement of sources: Proper acknowledgment.
- Disclosure and conflicts of interest: All submissions must include disclosure of all relationships that could be viewed as presenting a potential conflict of interest.

- Fundamental errors in published works: When an author discovers a significant error or inaccuracy in his/her own published work, it is the author's obligation to promptly notify the journal editor or publisher and cooperate with the editor to retract or correct the paper.
- Reporting standards: Authors of reports of original research should present an accurate account of the work performed as well as an objective discussion of its significance.
- Hazards and human or animal subjects: Statements of compliance are required if the work involves chemicals, procedures or equipment that have any unusual hazards inherent in their use, or if it involves the use of animal or human subjects.
- Use of patient images or case details: Studies on patients or volunteers require ethics committee approval and informed consent, which should be documented in the paper.
